

Student creates structures with stacks of cards

Arnav Daga, of class IX, of Sri Sri Academy had made an attempt to make the largest structure with playing cards. It took almost 41 days of hard work with 8-10 working hours everyday and approximately 143000 playing cards to make such structures. Arnav made no use of any glue or adhesive substance. Arnav is already holding a record in the Asia Book of Records for largest playing cards structure and now is moving towards the Guinness World Records.

The structure is a city of joy tour which includes important monuments like Salt Lake stadium, the Shaheed Minar, Writers' Building and the St Paul's Cathedral — all situated in Kolkata. The entire structure is still available for public display at 126 Vivekananda Road Kolkata -700006, beside Chaltabagan petrol pump, on the ground floor. The structure was completed on January 26. This is a unique talent with not more than even 100 people in the world. India has only three and Arnav is the one who is holding all the records. Arnav developed this hobby by watching a show on television which reached a different level during the lockdown.

Principal Suvina Shunglu said, "It is an unusual pursuit of excellence and determination and hard work. An eye for aesthetic design, patience and resilience gives Arnav a unique combination of skills and attitude which I hope will be used for a larger good of society in future. He is a good student and manages to balance his school commitments as well."
